Principal Fred Bartholomew

Ten years ago, the Princeton community eagerly anticipated the arrival of the newly appointed principal, Mr. Fred Bartholomew and his family. Since the Bartholomews were new to the area, virtually no one in Princeton knew what to expect. Soon after his arrival, Mr. B, as he affectionately came to be known, allayed any fears or apprehension by proving to be a dedicated educator and a concerned administrator.

During his administration, the school has progressed in all areas. The positive outlooks and infectious spirit of pride in PHS Mr. Bartholomew brings to his job is a constant inspiration to all with whom he comes in contact.

The Challenger salutes a man who continually challenges us to be the best!

LOVEBOAT REVISITED

As the early morning dawned, no one had the faintest idea that Princeton's Class of '81 would meet again.

It was an unusual day as Edward and Sherri packed for the cruise that they had won from McDonald's McDonald's manager, Tammy Farmer had set up a game to award the cruise to some lucky couple and fortunately Edward and Sherri were the winners.

To begin the day the taxi which had been called an hour earlier, arrived at the apartment of the Little's. When all the bags were loaded, Edward recognized the taxi driver. He had been so busy loading the bags that he had overlooked him before. The driver, Kent Lee Jones, was surprised to see his old classmates again. The time drifted away; they found themselves ready to board the ship. So many people were boarding the ship that Sherri almost lost Edward. When they finally reached the ship, the captair and chief crew members were there to meet them. At first, they failed to recognize each other because it had been ten years since they last had seen each other, but at last, the captain David Fields recognized Edward. They began to reminisce as Sherri hugged the co-captain, Ron Jones first and then Captair David directed Sherri and Edward to a lady who had her back to them. He told them that she would take care of them. As she turned around, Sherri called out, "Teresa Davis". After the two talked, Teresa showed them down the hall to their cabin. On the way to the cabin, Teresa had to sign a paper which Patty McCloud brought to her. After Patty left, Teresa told Edward and Sherri not to be surprised because there were many Princetonians working on the ship. Because Teresa knew that there were many more passengers arriving, she bade them good-bye, and told them she would see them later.

It seemed as though fate had brought the class of 81 back together. As Teresa, David and Ron stood there greeting guests, a strange set of events began to unfold.

Dale Toler, Lynne King, Lisa Melvin, Tammy Woodring and Yvette Robinette, who after high schoo had decided to join the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders, came on board. Right behind them was Keitl Worley and Pat Atkinson, who were to entertain on the ship this trip. But, just as Keith was boarding he ran into Patricia Lassiter, who now owned her own arts and crafts shop. Realizing Keith had hur his leg by running into Patricia, Wayne Pittman, the assistant purser, saw him and helped him to th ship's doctor. They knocked on the door and the secretary, Lori Roberts, ushered them into the office They told her what had happened and she called the doctor Patrick Slater and his nurse, Tanya Rains After the doctor looked at him, he just said it was a sprain.

In the meantime, the other passengers were arriving. Mike Atkinson, who had become a race car drive arrived, Kenneth Evans and Don Jones, who successfully owned their own radio shop also arrived. Jennife Deans, an international traveler, and Wesley Martin, the economical mastermind of the century wer talking as they boarded the ship together. Jennifer had been in France so long that no one coul understand her English. Therefore an interpreter, Ann Peal, was called in to help everyone understan what she was saying. Laurie Adams and Christy Daughtry arrived in front of two men, but they didn' realize who they were until their names were called out. Then they turned and ran to get Chris Rose' and Russell Jordan's autographs because they were two of the richest men in the world. It just so happene that Ken Jones, the man who rented everyone cars to get to the ship, was also going on the trip. Rene
